

Telemarketers are unsolicited, unwanted agents who waste tax payers time and pull hardworking persons from their families. The "Do Not Call" list is a very welcome and appreciated law. Should the law be overturned, I for one, will be upset with the decision. In the past, when receiving an unsolicited phone call from a telemarketer, I became aggravated and rude. It ruins a persons dinner. It is an invasion of my quality time with my family. If the government wishes to overturn this law, maybe the government should pay the taxes on my telephone bill, too. Hey, if they want to get so involved in my calls...they should pay for my calls...after all, I do!